“The impact of the new hyper motion technology is dramatic,” said David Rutter, Head of Product Development. “It makes the action feel alive and dynamic. Everything is really ‘right there’ in the moment and we’ve created a very responsive gameplay experience.” Direct from the pitch, FIFA 22 brings its players to life in a way that has never before been possible. During the pre-match preparation stage players have three parts of the pre-match preparation: Refuel: Players take shots at goal and chase down ball movement with incredible intelligence. The speed with which a player reacts to the ball is dependent on the type of play he is conducting. Movement and anticipation: Players attack and defend on the pitch just like they would in real-life. Players react quickly to on-ball situations, adjust to the strengths and weaknesses of their opponents, and most importantly, play the best way they know how. This requires intelligent, skilled and match-fit players and a fluid match simulation. Building a team: Players identify their ideal formation and pursue their strategy. Players pass the ball to team mates, establish possession, build attacks and play out of their transitional third, and finish the game with good goal scoring chances. During play FIFA 22 maintains the entertaining pace of real-life football. Players use brilliant ball control, bursts of speed and powerful dribbles to spread the ball and find team mates through fast, dynamic and acrobatic passing. Then, with just a few touches the best of those team mates will deliver an accurate and intelligent cross that a player will either reach or volley out of the net. Teams can also manipulate play with passing and shot creation through attacking moves, supporting plays, and direct dribbles. As a bonus, FIFA 22 features a full arsenal of improved controls, improved momentum control and total player customization. FIFA 22 gives players more touches on the pitch than any previous version, and even allows players to choose one of four “fantastic” faces – as seen in the EA SPORTS™ FIFA 20 Wallpapers. FIFA (originally called FIFA International Soccer or informally FIFA Soccer, FIFA being the English acronym for the full title) is a series of association football video games. The game has been in continuous production since its initial release in 1989, with every installment designed and created by EA Canada and published by Electronic Arts. Until the release of FIFA 19, FIFA had been the series' official successor to the Electronic Sports World Cup series released in 1985. While the first version of the game allowed players to select their team from a pool of national teams, from FIFA 2 onwards, EA introduced an Ultimate Team mode which allowed players to build and manage their own team of players, replacing the pre-existing pool of national teams. While Ultimate Team has long been the series' mode of choice, FIFA continued to support other modes such as Career, International Cup, and Champions League, with FIFA 15 also introducing the new Formation mode which aimed to simulate the role of managers in the real world. The most recent additions to the series are on-field improvements, such as the introduction of artificial intelligence in play (known as "Match Day"), and 3D displays and layers of players in goal. FIFA Ultimate Team was also reworked to have more features like TOTY and more team kits. This version also launched the game to PlayStation 4. In addition, the four versions of the game that feature licensed leagues now have updated graphics, displaying more detailed stadiums and players' clothing, and have teams and players with new animations. There are now also new features like the ability to play a match even if your team has lost, while other features like avoiding injury have been added to Career mode. Powered by Football Football continues to power the spirit of competition across the entire FIFA universe. From the pitch to the training ground, our legendary game engine is the centerpiece of FIFA's gameplay, providing all manner of tools to players to develop their game. With the game's all-encompassing FIFA Universe mode, thousands of players can continue to hone their game alongside their teammates or compete against tens of thousands of other players around the world. Under the new Mastery feature in FIFA Ultimate Team, players can now earn PES-like bronze, silver, gold and diamond stars to better display their Fifa Football skills. FIFA Ultimate Team online While the game's official Ultimate Team format has long been the mainstay for most players, many players enjoy playing in the real-
